

Dr Alison Melvin

MBChB (Leeds) MD FRCP

Consultant in Acute General Medicine/Diabetes and Endocrinology

Dr Alison Melvin qualified from Leeds University in 1991 and undertook her postgraduate medical training in the Leeds Teaching Hospitals, Addenbrooke's University Hospital and the Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital, she also undertook three years of research in the Department of Clinical Biochemistry at Addenbrooke's University Hospital Cambridge, leading to her attaining her Doctorate of Medicine.

Dr Melvin joined the diabetes department at Bedford Hospital in 2002 as a consultant in acute general medicine and diabetes and endocrinology. She deals with acute medical inpatients, and diabetes and endocrine outpatients.

Dr Melvin runs general diabetes and endocrine clinics (including thyroid biopsies), and her special interests include: diabetic foot problems, transitional care for young adults with diabetes, endocrine patients with PCOS, and pituitary disorders.

You can contact the diabetes clinics on: 01234 792287